Town's Renovation Plans At Baseball Facility Bat Zero

By CATHERINE WALTHERS

Top town officials battled over proposed improvements to Spy Pond Field before a crowd of baseball players, coaches and parents at a Finance Committee hearing Monday night.

Town Treasurer John Balafer, flanked by nearly 70 upset residents, criticized other town officials for completing plans for the clubhouse and stands without discussion with people who use that field.

Balafer asked Finance Committee members to support the article he filed for the May 19 Special Town Meeting calling for a moratorium on any proposed demolition of buildings at the field.

The article also seeks the formation of a "committee of nine" to restore the field.

The baseball coaches and students at the meeting spent nearly an hour talking about the uniqueness of the baseball field, located adjacent to the Boys and Girls Club.

"We're proud of that place," said Arlington High School baseball coach Bob Lavery. "My concern is that the facility be maintained and not be demolished."

Pointing to the crowd standing around the perimeter of the Town Hall hearing room, Lavery said, "They're here because they want the community to realize they feel strongly about that place."

Man Held On Murder Rap

By CATHERINE WALTHERS

An Arlington man is being held on $100,000 bond for the murder of a 31-year-old Cambridge man whose body was found in a swampy area in Billerica April 27.

Charles E. Taylor, 46, of 76 Hodge rd., was arrested May 1 at Somerville District Court and charged with murder.

State police have also charged Marian Scollies of Abbeygate rd. in Cotuit with accessory after murder and said they expect to charge several other people, including another Arlington resident, in what they called a drug related case.

The body of Robert M. Zinanni Jr. of Cambridge was found in a swampy area in Billerica just after midnight on the 27th.

According to police, Zinanni was shot once in the forehead with a 12 gauge shotgun. The shooting occurred at 14 Sargeant ave. in Somerville, but the body was later brought up to Billerica and dumped, said state trooper Gary Walsh of the Middlesex County District Attorney's office.

Police departments in Somerville, Billerica and Arlington assisted the district attorney's office in the case.

Taylor was arraigned in Somerville District Court and held on $100,000 cash bail. The probable cause hearing is set for tomorrow.

"We expect the grand jury will hear the case sometime the following week and we expect more arrests resulting from the grand jury."

Harte-Hanks To Buy Advocate

Arlington Advocate Publisher C. Peter Jorgensen and his wife Kathryn, owners of Century Newspapers, this week reached agreement with Harte-Hanks Communications, parent company of The Middlesex News of Framingham, to acquire Century's six suburban papers.

In addition to The Arlington Advocate, Century publishes five weekly newspapers in the Boston suburbs: The Winchester Star, The Belmont Citizen, The Belmont Herald, The Watertown Sun and The Newton Transcript.

Century also owns the National News Service of New York, which publishes the weekly Commercial and Financial Chronicle and the monthly Bank and Quotation Record. Both are specialized financial publications.

Jorgensen is also publisher of The Artilleryman, a magazine which is not included in the acquisition.

The Century Newspapers will become part of Harte-Hanks' News-Transcript Group, which is headquartered in Framingham and led by group President James W. Hopson.

The daily newspapers in the group are the Middlesex News, Framingham, the Daily Transcript, Dedham, and the News-Tribune, Waltham.

"We are particularly pleased with the Century acquisition because it contributes to our growth strategy—to concentrate our resources in fewer, larger markets."

—Robert G. Marbut
Harte-Hanks president

Weekly newspapers in the group are the Wayland-Weston Town Crier, the Sudbury Town Crier, the Wellesley Townsman, the Parkway Transcript, the West Roxbury Transcript, the Newton Graphic, the Needham Chronicle, the Trib Plus, the Family Shopper and MetroWest Extra.

"We are very pleased that the Century Newspapers will become part of the News-Transcript family," said Hopson. "These high-quality weekly newspapers fit well with our commitment to good community journalism, and the communities they serve are among the most attractive in the Boston area."

"Becoming part of Harte-Hanks means greater opportunities for our employees," Jorgensen said, "and Harte-Hanks' excellent reputation for quality journalism and community service ensures that our newspapers will be in good hands."

Commenting on the acquisition, Harte-Hanks President Robert G. Marbut said: "We are particularly pleased with the Century acquisition because it contributes to our growth strategy—to concentrate our resources in fewer, larger markets. We believe the Boston market is one of the most attractive in the United States."

Harte-Hanks Communications Inc. currently owns and operates 26 daily newspapers and more than 100 non-daily publications, including weekly newspapers, advertising publications produced by newspapers, city and tourism magazines and a trade publication for the radio industry.

The company also produces shoppers that are zoned into 413 separate editions reaching 4.8 million households each week.

Also owned and operated by Harte-Hanks are four VHF network affiliated television stations. The company owns cable television systems serving 143,000 basic subscribers. Harte-Hanks owns and operates six marketing services companies and 25 direct mail systems reaching 96 percent of American households.

Candidates Spent Thousands

By WILLIAM B. HAYNES

Candidates for town offices, successful and unsuccessful, spent from nine cents to $6.71 a vote to win over Arlington voters.

Candidates spent most of their money on advertising, postage, printing, food, and photocopying, according to figures released this week by the Town Clerk's office.

Although he lost the campaign for Selectman, George McGinnity was the top spender in election, spending $6,804. He received $7,323 in contributions.

Not far behind in campaign spending, Selectman victor Stephen Conroy received $7,523 in contributions and spent $6,564.

Arthur Speros, also unsuccessful in his bid for Selectman, received $900 and doled out $4,596 or $6.71 per vote.

Although it was a competitive race, School Committee candidates spent half as much as Selectman candidates did.

School Committee member Katharine Fennelly, who came in second, raised and spent the most money in this campaign. Her contributions totaled $3,430 and spending came to $3,181.

Michael Healy, also elected, raised $2,110 and spent $1,422.

Winner of the School Committee race, incumbent William Carey received only $475 in contributions and spent $415.

Unsuccessful in his second attempt to join the School Committee, Stephen Kelly raised $2,506 in contributions and spent $2,633.

A fifth School Committee candidate, Charles Pappas, has not returned his Campaign Finance Report. Town Clerk Ann Powers said his name is being forwarded to the Attorney General's office.

Candidates are required to submit their final campaign finance report 30 days after the election.

Candidates in the March elections for Selectman and School Committee found that they didn't always get what they paid for.

In the Selectman's race, while Conroy spent $1.44 for every vote he received, McGinnity spent $3.26 and Speros $6.71.

Planning Board Moves To Clean Up Sign Pollution In Business District

By WILLIAM B. HAYNES

Some of the most colorful signs of spring were budding around town long before the dogwoods and cherry trees unfolded their fragrant blossoms.

The signs are advertisements and are taped to windows, placed on sidewalks, and tied to poles that support still other signs.

Redevelopment Board member Philip McCarthy said some areas of town look like "a sea of sign pollution."

Planning Director Alan McClennen said the number and size of signs in Arlington have increased over the last five years, so the Redevelopment Board has designed a plan to deal with the problem before it gets out of hand.

McCarthy proposed at the last Redevelopment Board meeting that a "spring clean up" campaign begin.

The campaign would involve the board and the Chamber of Commerce working hand-in-hand to recognize existing violations of the sign bylaw and then contacting the owners of the businesses asking them to rectify the situation.

"The Getty station across from the Calvary Methodist Church stands out like a sore thumb," said McCarthy. "There are 20 signs, some say they take Visa and Mastercard, and there are a number of signs telling you that they are a Getty station. It's the worst sign pollution I've ever seen."

McCarthy also criticized Walcott's Sales and Service on Mystic st. for too many signs.

He also mentioned that the Modern Market across from Stop and Shop had a very large sign. "You'd think the purpose of the window was to hold the sign," said McCarthy. "There is one giant sign telling us that 'Coke is it.'"

"Generally, businesses are allowed one or two signs depending on the type of the sign and the location in the building," said McClennen. Covering more than 25 percent of the window space with signs is also illegal.

"I think there is a need to educate the business community that there is a sign bylaw that needs to be adhered to," said Thomas Falwell, Redevelopment Board chairman.

McClennen explains the bylaw to the owners of all new businesses when they first move into Arlington. He also gives them a copy of "Sign Sense: Arlington, Mass.," which was published by board members in 1977.

Sign Sense outlines the sign portion of the zoning bylaw adopted by Town Meeting in 1965 and presents creative alternatives to "the bigger the better" philosophy of advertising. (Please See SIGNS, Page 2)

In Prom, Graduation Season Focus Is On Teen Drinking

By EDWARD ENGEL

Teenage drinking and driving accidents during high school prom and graduation nights seem to make headlines in city newspapers year after year.

But for Arlington the biggest news is no news at all—there just haven't been any serious accidents. A combined effort by town public officials and educators has been keeping Arlington students safe.

Each year, Elizabeth Oppedisano, the executive director of the Arlington Council on Alcohol Education, plans prom assemblies at Arlington High School, sponsors a hotline for students needing a safe ride home, and writes a letter to parents about alcohol abuse during the graduation and prom season.

This year she is also doing a special prom and graduation show on "Alcohol, Drugs and You," a cable TV show that she regularly co-hosts.

But the major addition to the prom and graduation safety efforts this year is "Graduation '86," an all-night graduation party to be held at the high school from 9:30 p.m. to 5 a.m., June 8. "It's an alternative for the kids," says Oppedisano.

"I think they're still drinking, but their thinking more about their drinking, their level of awareness is up."

—Elizabeth Oppedisano
Alcohol Education Council

The party is being organized by parents of juniors and seniors to provide a place for seniors to celebrate in safety. Chaperoning will be by the parents of junior class students.

According to Arlington High School Principal Stephen Diott, there will also be at least four faculty and administrative chaperones, as well as volunteering teachers, at the graduation party and at the proms.

Oppedisano sponsors separate senior and junior prom assemblies. This year, says Diott, the senior assembly will be on May 8 and the junior assembly on May 22, both the day before their respective proms. At the senior assembly, Marion Stokes, the co-founder of the chapter of the Mothers Against Drunk Driving (MADD), will speak. At the junior assembly, community safety officer David McKenna will address students. (Please See PROM, Page 2)

Mass. Ave. Getty, 295 Mass. ave., has many signs advertising the station and its products. Redevelopment Board members said the number of signs at this station and others has increased in Arlington due to price wars among other things. (Paul Drake Photo)

Residents Want Moratorium On Field Renovation Plans

Manager Donald Marquis joined the Finance Committee meeting. Marquis said plans for the field originated three years ago and were approved by the School Committee.

Based on the numbers who attend games, Marquis said town plans call for the demolition of one-half of the grandstands and refurbishing the remaining half. The stands would then accommodate 500 fans, said Marquis.

In addition, plans include demolishing the clubhouse next to the stands, but renovating the part of the clubhouse that extends about 24 feet under the stands.

The changes, funded with $70,000 in Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) money, are scheduled to begin in July. No changes are planned for the field itself.

Engineers hired by the town had found structural damage to the clubhouse which Marquis called a town liability.

The engineers found one wall "seriously" out of line and a depressed roofline.

"We have serious problems we need to address," said Marquis.

"Someone is going to get hurt and the town is going to be sued."

"There's not a person in this room that knew anything about this," said Bialer to the town manager.

Bialer suggested that the town let the building become so run down that it had to be torn down.

"What we are doing now is perfectly logical given the money we have," responded Marquis, who added that the issue had come before the Finance Committee, School and Committee and in CDBG hearings.

Finance Committee member Deborah Ferraro said she's been on the committee four years and never heard talk of this once.

Selectman Charles Lyons asked how much money it would take to renovate the existing clubhouse and grandstands. He was told it would take a total of $160,000 (including the $70,000 the town already has).

Bialer said part of the CDBG money is being used to tear down the clubhouse.

"We'd like to use that money in a much more positive way — to put that facility back in shape," he said.

In any case, Bialer said the group would like a second opinion about the building's condition.

"We have an obligation to move when we see it (problems)," said Marquis. "If we take another year, we may be in trouble."

The building may have historical significance, responded James Lord, Finance Committee vice chairman.

Finance Committee members acknowledged the discussion was getting beyond the scope of the board's concern. At that point, Marquis suggested that a group of five or six people from those gathered visit him in his office for a more in-depth explanation of proposed changes.

Later at the Selectmen's meeting, Lyons suggested the board look at the current CDBG allocation for any additional money to restore the facilities.

Lyons said if the public wants the plans changed they will have to go to the School Committee and outline how it is going to be done financially.

He suggested that since Bialer was the "leader" that maybe he should come up with ideas for additional financing.

Residents and coaches at the meeting said they only wanted to protect the field for future use.

"It's not for one group — it's for the youth of Arlington," said resident Barry O'Shaughnessy. "This is not a special interest group — it's a large group trying to protect a tradition, protect a field that's been part of Arlington for many years."

Not only is the "best field you can play on," according to longtime local coach Tiger Graham, but the nearby facilities in the clubhouse are a plus.

At most fields, they said players had to walk a mile to get to water or toilets.

At the Arlington field, if it rains players can get shelter inside. If it's hot, they can cool down inside, explained AHS freshman coach Kevin Brooks.

"Coaches love to come to this town," said Brooks. "I think it would be criminal to destroy a facility like that."

But as Caliendo says, A-Cal is not a walk-in business. "We don't advertise, believe it or not," says Caliendo. "We maintain 107 accounts by word of mouth alone. It's strange that we're here, but we don't depend on walk-in business. We're too busy servicing equipment."

Usually companies hire salesmen to sell. Because we're technicians, we know the garbage from the good," Caliendo says. "When I service copiers, people always ask me what the best are. And we act as consultants. Even if we

A-Cal: Not A Bad Reproduction

By EDWARD ENGEL

Three years ago, Tony Caliendo went from banging on drums to banging on the inside of office copy machines.

And now 26-year-old Caliendo, who played the instrument professionally before getting into the copier business, is owner of the month-old A-Cal Discount Copiers at 469 Summer st.

After a few years of working as a Boston representative for a Rhode Island copier firm while teaching drum playing on the side, he's now his own boss.

A-Cal sells and rents new and used copiers and copier supplies. But Caliendo, claiming most copier businesses are sales-oriented, says A-Cal is primarily a service business.

Each year, Caliendo drives 40,000 miles getting his hands dirty as he provides same-day service to the copiers of area businesses and schools. Working with his brother Bob, who manages the shop and in-house serviceman Bill Easton, Caliendo services 102 models of copiers.

Caliendo says "90 percent" of his clients are businesses such as real estate brokers, doctors and computer companies. A-Cal also services the Waltham school system.

Of the 102 models serviced, Caliendo stocks four or five that he sells in the showroom at the front of the store. In the store's first week, he says, he sold two copiers.

But as Caliendo says, A-Cal is not a walk-in business. "We don't advertise, believe it or not," says Caliendo. "We maintain 107 accounts by word of mouth alone. It's strange that we're here, but we don't depend on walk-in business. We're too busy servicing equipment."

Usually companies hire salesmen to sell. Because we're technicians, we know the garbage from the good," Caliendo says. "When I service copiers, people always ask me what the best are. And we act as consultants. Even if we don't sell them, we can advise people on their copiers."

Caliendo prides himself on A-Cal's prices. "We're the cheapest in New England. We're low-priced because our overhead is low," A-Cal's owner also claims to double the warranty on every copier sold and to sell used copiers with new copier warranties.

What does Caliendo, a lifelong resident of Arlington and Boston College business graduate, hope to achieve with his new business?

"Well, eventually we'd like to be the biggest discount operation in New England and double our size. . . and someday be big enough to become a dealership. Other than that, we just want to pick up more, satisfied customers."

Caliendo sees the future of copier businesses as bright. "There's a big demand now all around. And a lot of people are buying small copiers for their kids."

And as for the future of Tony Caliendo and A-Cal Discount Copiers?

"I'm only 26," he says. "The only way to go is up."

A-Cal Discount Copiers is open Monday through Friday, 9 to 5, and may soon start opening on Saturdays.

German Trip Is Officially Postponed Several Students May Go Anyway

By WILLIAM B. HAYNES

This year's German exchange trip was called off by trip leader Arlington High School German teacher Janet Oppedisano after more students dropped out and others were reconsidering the trip in the light of international terrorism.

"I postponed it because of the Libya attack," said Oppedisano. "The [international] situation had become more uncertain and many students really started to drop out. It was down to 10 students from the original 19, and two or three were still questioning whether they would go or not."

The postponement came after nearly a month of discussion between the School Committee, Oppedisano, students and parents.

Of the eight or nine who were still interested when the trip was cancelled, five are seniors. Some of these seniors will go to Germany this summer on their own, others may go to Germany with the AHS group if there is a school-sponsored trip next year.

The students were scheduled to go to the Quickborn High School in northern Germany in June shortly before summer vacation started.

They would have spent a month in Germany, living with German families, attending classes and then touring the country.

The trip would round out the exchange which began last fall when German students came to Arlington for a month.

According to Oppedisano, close friendships had been formed in the fall, and the AHS crew had written many letters and even made a video to send to the German students at Christmas.

The uncertainty, debates, and the students' slow withdrawal from the trip were "defeating the whole spirit of the program," said Oppedisano.

Chairman of the School Committee Kathleen Dias announced the trip's postponement at last week's School Committee meeting.

At that meeting, the board voted to work on a policy governing school-sponsored trips and asked the Policy and Procedures Subcommittee to make a recommendation. (Please see related story.)

School Committee members praised the efforts of Oppedisano and other teachers who spend the time and energy to plan out and carry through with trips abroad, and said they wanted to encourage future trips.

Oppedisano and her students still hope to take this year's trip next year.

Committee To Devise Policy For Students Taking Trips

The Policy and Procedures Subcommittee will discuss the best way for the School Committee to deal with school-sponsored trips abroad.

Referral to the Policy and Procedures Subcommittee came after a lengthy discussion sparked by the news of Janet Oppedisano's postponement of this year's exchange trip to Germany.

A German teacher and trip leader, Oppedisano decided to postpone the trip because half of the students scheduled to go to Germany withdrew over fear of international terrorism.

"I told her that the School Committee did support her activity and we support cultural exchanges," said School Committee Chairman Kathleen Dias. "Hopefully it will go forward in the future."

In past years, the role of the School Committee in relation to school sponsored trips abroad was one of passive acceptance. The board acknowledged that the trip was going but never voted to allow the trip to go forward.

For the first time this year, due to concern for the safety of the students, the School Committee voted on allowing a trip to go abroad.

In addition to the German trip, trips are scheduled to go to Spain and France next year.

School Superintendent Walter Devine said he has already received questions from parents about next year's Spanish trip.

"Hopefully the policy will not be black and white but realistic and steer the way for the administration's recommendation," said School Committee member Janice Baley.

After the subcommittee puts together a recommendation, it will go to the full School Committee for a discussion and a vote.

ASTHMA ATTACK

ATTACK is the word. If you have ever seen anyone fighting for their breath during an ASTHMA ATTACK, you know that their body is "UNDER ATTACK."

The desperation in their eyes as they force themselves to stay "in control," knowing that panic will increase the severity of the ATTACK. The helplessness you feel—wanting to help, but without anything except empty "words of encouragement."

WHY???—WHY???—WHY???—but there is no answer, unless some way, you can help the body function correctly.

AHA, a glimmer of hope. Maybe there is a misalignment in the spinal column. Maybe that misalignment is causing pressure on the nerve that acts as a communicator from the brain to the lungs. Maybe that pressure is causing the lungs to malfunction. Maybe if the spinal segment (vertebra) was restored to its correct alignment the pressure would be released and that energy force would again flow freely, directing the body to respond to the ATTACK. That is not to say that there is any panacea, oh no, but a glimmer of hope is worth a try—what have you got to lose—contact a Doctor of Chiropractic to determine if your problem is a problem for a chiropractic solution.

Many chiropractors will make no charge for a consultation and will gladly inform you of the probabilities of correcting the CAUSE of the problem.

Taking drugs to ward off the effects may give "temporary relief," but what are the long term effects, what will those drugs do to your body in the next 10, 20, or 30 years? Contact a person that is into NATURAL HEALTH—contact a CHIROPRACTOR to get the answers to your questions.

Library Activities

Children Need New Library Cards

Robbins Jr. Library borrowers will need to get new cards for use in the automated circulation system that will be in place in early June.

Applications and parent information letters have been sent home with each child in the Arlington public and parochial school systems. The applications should be filled out and signed and returned to the child's school.

The new cards will be prepared at the library and may be picked up at the Robbins Library Jr. library desk after June 2. Those children not enrolled in Arlington schools may come in to the library and fill out an application anytime after May 12.

Jourdan, Maurice Chevalier and Hermione Gingold. It includes such tunes as "Thank Heaven for Little Girls," "I Remember It Well," and the title tune "Gigi."

In color, a winner of nine Academy Awards including Best Picture. Directed by Vincent Minelli.

Mother's Day Storytime

Children ages 5-7 are invited to attend a program featuring stories about those special people, mothers, on Saturday, May 10, at 10:30 in the Robbins Jr. Library.

After the stories, each child will have a chance to create a card for his/her own special mother. Enrollment is limited so sign up now at the Robbins Jr. Library desk.

'Gigi' to Show At Fox Library

The movie "Gigi" will be shown free at the Fox Branch Library this Friday, May 9, at 2 and 7:30 p.m.

This is a musical version of Colette's turn-of-the-century story of a French girl who is groomed to be a courtesan. The score by Lerner and Loewe is sung by Leslie Caron, Louis

Police Log

Again this week, many car radios were stolen and an arrest was made for breaking into an automobile.

Over the course of the week, car stereos were stolen from six vehicles, and attempts were made to enter several other automobiles.

On May 2, a 17-year-old Arlington man was arrested and charged with attempting to steal a car stereo.

Kevin Healy of 28 Henderson st. was arrested at 11:26 p.m. at Medi Mart, 324 Mass. ave., and charged with breaking and entering into motor vehicles in the night with intent to commit a felony.

A stereo was stolen on Saturday from a 1986 Yugo parked on Appleton st. On Sunday, a Pioneer car stereo was stolen from a 1981 Datsun on Lancaster rd., and a Blaupunkt radio and a box of tapes with a combined value of $500 were taken from a 1983 Saab on Browning rd.

Also on Sunday, an AM/FM Clarion stereo was reported stolen from a 1985 Saab parked on Appleton st. after a thief broke the passenger side window. The stereo was valued at $600.

A $600 Blaupunkt stereo was also taken from an unlocked 1982 Saab parked on Appleton st. on Sunday.

On Monday, a $120 AM/FM Blaupunkt stereo was taken from a 1986 VW on Hillside ave.

Police Director John Carroll said residents should write down the serial numbers of their car stereos so they can be traced and returned if recovered. Carroll said much of the motor vehicle vandalism recorded is due to people trying to enter cars to steal stereos.

Arrests

Police recorded 10 arrests over the week. Half of them involved motor vehicle violations.

Last Tuesday, a 25-year-old Arlington man was arrested on Allen st. and charged with operating an unregistered, uninsured motor vehicle without a license.

On Thursday, a 19-year-old Arlington man was arrested on Hibbert st. on out-of-town warrants. Douglas B. Rouleau of 61 Tanager st. was arrested on Cambridge warrants and charged with larceny over $100, and attempt to commit a crime.

Also on Thursday, a 30-year-old Arlington man was arrested on Broadway for motor vehicle warrants.

On Friday, a Somerville man was arrested at 3:39 a.m. on Medford st. and charged with operating after his license was revoked.

Also on Friday, a 16-year-old Arlington youth was arrested at Downing Square for being a minor in possession of alcohol. Police say he was a part of a large group creating a disturbance in the area, and that they are seeking complaints for disorderly conduct against five other youths who fled the scene.

On Friday, a 24-year-old Arlington woman was arrested on out-of-town warrants for motor vehicle violations and a felony. Angela Forsen, 24, of 5 Adams st., was arrested and charged with two state police traffic warrants, and an MBTA warrant for assault and battery with a shod foot.

A 15-year-old Arlington youth was arrested on Brattle Terrace on Friday for being a runaway.

A 21-year-old Arlington man was arrested on Fremont ct. for drinking in public on Friday night.

On Sunday, a 42-year-old Arlington man was arrested on Gardner st. for being a disorderly person.

Also on Sunday, a 28-year-old Brighton man was arrested for operating after suspension, and failure to keep right when he was observed driving on Mystic st. at 7:12 on Sunday morning.

Housebreaks

The number of housebreaks has decreased rapidly from the large numbers logged over the last two months. This week, there were only two houses entered and one store. An attempt was made to enter another house.

Last Tuesday, thieves entered Arlington Trucking at 22 Sunnyside ave. and stole an undetermined amount of cash. Police say the thieves gained entrance to the building by bypassing the alarm and breaking a window to enter after cutting the telephone and alarm lines.

Also last Tuesday an attempt was made to enter a Venner st. apartment by prying open the back door.

On Friday, a jar of quarters valued at $30 was taken from a Mass. ave. home after thieves entered a ground level window.

On Monday, $25 cash was taken from a Broadway home.

Thefts

A 1984 Buick Regal was stolen from outside a Forest st. home last Tuesday.

On Friday a 20-inch, blue, BMX boys' bike was stolen from 23 Churchill ave.

Two bikes were stolen out of a Brattle terrace garage on Saturday. A boys' 26-inch white bike valued at $200 and a boys' 26-inch MongOOSE bike valued at $200 were taken.

A 1985 Lincoln Continental was stolen from the driveway of a Walnut st. home on Monday.

Vandalism

Over the last week, some 17 cases of vandalism were recorded in town, and 15 of them occurred to motor vehicles.

Last Tuesday, a fence was damaged outside a Gardner st. home.

On Thursday, five cars were vandalized. Two tires were slashed on a 1976 Ford on Water st., and on a 1986 Chevrolet on Freeman st. A tire was slashed on a Buick parked on Freeman st., and a 1984 Dodge on Park st.

Also on Thursday, two tires were slashed on a 1981 Dodge parked on Milton st.

A large window was broken at Utopia Cleaners, 40 Park ave., on Thursday.

On Friday, 13 motor vehicles parked near the sidewalk were scratched by a sharp object at the LeBer's lot of Mirak Lincoln Mercury, 960 Mass. ave.

Also on Friday, eight windows valued at $800 were smashed on a truck parked on Lancaster rd.

A 1986 Alfa Romeo was vandalized on Hamilton rd. on Friday.

The front windshield was smashed on a 1976 Chevrolet Nova while it was parked on Mass. ave. on Saturday.

The windshield was broken on a 1978 Chevrolet while it was parked at Spy Pond ext.

The driver's side window of a 1985 Toyota was smashed while it was parked on Amsden st. on Saturday.

A side window was broken and the dash was broken on a 1983 Ford parked on Uline st. on Sunday.

Also on Sunday, a 1977 Oldsmobile was damaged by a baseball bat and scratched by a key on Rockland ave.

On Monday, three tires were slashed on a 1985 Ford T-Bird and the telephone lines were cut on a Menotomy rd. home.

The front passenger side window was smashed on a 1986 Volvo while it was parked on Renfrew st.

Learn how easy it can be to turn daycare into a rewarding career.

Have you ever thought about the career possibilities of family daycare?

If so, come to the Holiday Inn in Burlington on Tuesday night, May 20, at 7:00 PM.

We'll be hosting a panel discussion on daycare that we've designed to help you get started. It's free and open to the public. With half of all mothers working outside the home, the need for quality daycare is urgent.

By providing family daycare, you can work in your own home while performing a much-needed service for children of working parents.

And you can add to your family's income, too.

So join us at the Holiday Inn in Burlington. Then start your own small business at home with the kids.

To pre-register for this free meeting call Mary McCarthy at 729-4350 or 4351.

Sponsored by The Family Daycare Provider Support Network of The Mystic Valley Council for Children and The Child Care Resource Center.

Health News

Hospice Care Relocates To Central School

Hospice Care, Inc. (HCI) has moved. The new office is now housed in the recently renovated Central School, located behind Arlington Town Hall, on Academy St.

HCI will share the building with other elder and social service organizations including Arlington Council on Aging and Cooperative Elder Services, Inc.

Hospice Care was founded in 1978 by Rev. Kenneth Wentzel, pastor of the Pleasant Street Congregational Church in Arlington. Volunteers worked out of the Church's basement until moving to donated space at Symmes Hospital Multi-Service Center in Arlington in 1981.

According to Ed Dolan, HCI executive director, "this generous offer by Choate-Symmes Health Services to donate office space for our use was the turning point for us. We were then able to hire a professional staff and begin to expand and grow."

The new address of Hospice Care is 20 Academy St., Arlington 02174. Hospice Care, Inc. serves terminally ill patients and their families in the north suburban Boston area. For more information call 648-3172.

Doctor To Discuss Skin Cancer

Philip S. Ellerin, M.D., a board certified member of the American Academy of Dermatology, will give a lecture and slide presentation on the recognition and prevention of skin cancer on Wednesday, May 28, from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Choate Hospital in Woburn.

"Skin Cancer: Recognition, Prevention and Treatment" will present information of the three major types of skin cancer, early signs of pre-cancerous conditions, profiles of the person most prone to cancer, chances of cure and (SPF) Sun Protection factor numbers which now appear on commercial suntan lotions. Dr. Ellerin will discuss methods of recognizing mole changes and how to determine if new moles might be melanomas.

Free literature from the American Academy of Dermatology will be available.

The American Cancer Society estimates that about 400,000 people will develop skin cancer in the U.S. this year; 7,400 people will die.

The program is free and open to the public. Pre-registration is required, please call 933-6700, Ext. 377.

Diabetes Chapter To Meet May 13.

The Choate/Symmes Chapter of the American Diabetes Assn. will hold its monthly meeting on May 13, at 7:30 p.m. in the cafeteria at Symmes Hospital in Arlington.

Guest speaker will be Jere D. Hoover, executive director, American Diabetes Assn., Mass. Affiliate, who will discuss "The Choate/Symmes Chapter - To Be Or Not To Be?" These meetings are open to the public at no charge.

Bloodmobile At St. Eualia's

On Monday, May 19th, a Red Cross Bloodmobile will be held at St. Eualia's Church, 50 Ridge St., Winchester from 2 to 8 p.m.

Anyone age 18 and over, weighing at least 110 pounds, and in good health may donate blood. It is recommended that a donor eat at least two hours or less before giving blood. All are welcome.

Cardiovascular Risk Assessment Program Is Offered

Many of the factors which are known to play a role in the development of cardiovascular disease are controllable.

Residents are invited to learn about their risks for heart disease by coming for blood work — including tests for cholesterol (HDL, triglycerides, and glucose) at either Choate Hospital in Woburn or the Symmes Hospital in Arlington on Wednesday morning, May 21. A follow-up visit will be scheduled with a health educator one week after the blood work is completed for a blood pressure test and individual lifestyle counseling to minimize risk for heart disease.

Pre-registration is required. To make an appointment and for additional information regarding fees, please call the Community Health Education Department at either Choate 933-6700, Ext. 377, or at Symmes 646-1500, Ext. 2291. Evening counseling appointments are available.

Backrub Basics At Symmes

Choate-Symmes Health Services is offering a one evening "Backrub Basics" workshop at the Symmes Hospital.

The workshop provides the participant with the techniques of massage for relaxation.

Pre-registration is required. Please register in pairs. To attend, please call Symmes Community Health Education Dept. at 646-1500, ext. 2291.

Special Olympics Are This Saturday

Arlington residents are invited to come and cheer on hundreds of special athletes from some 21 communities who will compete in the Northern Middlesex Special Olympics to be held this Saturday at Peirce Field at Arlington High School.

At 9:30 a.m., a series of competitions will begin in which young men and women will participate in track and field, basketball, frisbee, softball and other games.

The day includes a special lunch to be prepared by the Arlington Knights of Columbus and Elks Lodge, a dance and evening barbeque, and family fun.

For a battery of local volunteers, this marks the third consecutive year that Arlington has served as host of the area games. This competition is crucial, as winners so declared on Saturday are then deemed eligible to represent their community in the Massachusetts State Olympics to be held in June.

"We are fortunate to have many volunteers, but we especially need people to come and cheer on these young people," notes Attorney William Grannan, games director.

Co-chairing the event this year are Frank Donnelly and Joanne Sisk, who have spent several months overseeing the multitude of duties necessary to bring the games to fruition. Again for the third year, Dr. Larry Barton will serve as Master of Ceremonies.

To commemorate Saturday's game, a program listing all the teams and many of the volunteers who are working to make Saturday's event a success is being printed. It will be available tomorrow at Menotomy Pharmacy, 1332 Mass. Ave., Browne Drug, 201 Mass. Ave., and Barton and Associates, 361 Mass. Ave.

For several months, athletes have been working with their trainers from their hometown to prepare for Saturday. They will be registering from 8:15 to 9 a.m., with the Opening Ceremonies and parade of athletes beginning at 9:15 a.m. The competition begins at 9:30 a.m.

According to Stan Lewis of the Arlington Assn. for Retarded Citizens, which is sponsoring the event with the assistance of Conifer Banks, the athletes will be kept busy all day long.

With the help of the Arlington Recreation Department, Boys and Girls Club and many other organizations, volunteers, medical teams and information persons will all have their assignments in advance.

"It's especially important that we highlight the generosity of the Conifer Banks, which this year is underwriting a substantial portion of the costs associated with this undertaking," adds Grannan. "Not only is Conifer assisting us financially, but a large number of their employees are giving up their Saturdays to volunteer as well."

In addition to the series of athletic events on Peirce Field, still additional activities, such as knock-hockey, a series of clinics, basketball and other events will take place inside Arlington High School.

The county level of the Special Olympics is possibly the most important, adds Grannan, because most of the special athletes take part only in these games, and only a limited number move onto the state, national and international finals held later in the summer. He adds that to attract an even wider number of participants, this year the Mass. State Olympics allowed the Arlington group to sponsor two divisions of some events, one where strict rules are adhered to, and another where they will be relaxed.

Additional information on the Special Olympics is available from Betsy McDaniel at the Boys and Girls Club.

Animal Art Show Set At Stratton

Animal artwork created by students from Arlington will be displayed at an upcoming art show May 8 at Stratton School by the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals (MSPCA). Selected pieces will be displayed at a worldwide conference this summer in Boston.

The show, set for 1 p.m. on May 8 is one of 10 such shows sponsored by the MSPCA at schools throughout the state to raise awareness about the important role animals play in the lives of humans.

MSPCA judges will select two works of art from the students' entries for display at a Delta Society conference this summer in Boston. The Delta Society is an international educational and research organization devoted to promoting the human-animal bond.

The MSPCA is co-sponsoring the conference, whose theme will be: "Living Together: People, Animals and the Environment."

More than 650 Massachusetts students are competing to have their work displayed at the conference, set for Aug. 21-23 at the Boston Park Plaza Hotel.

Bishop's T-Shirts

First graders Rebecca Nixon, Hillary Donnellan, Rebecca Thomas, Amber D'Amore and Jessica Young model the new Bishop School T-Shirts designed by students. The schoolwide T-Shirt project was sponsored by the Bishop PTO and the designs by a number of students are incorporated in the final design. T-Shirts and sweatshirts will be on sale at the Bishop School fair on Saturday, May 17.

Stratton PTO Plans Meeting

The Stratton School PTO will hold its final General Membership Meeting of the school year, on Thursday, May 15, at 7 p.m. The children are invited to accompany their parents to the school, where their artistic endeavors will be displayed in Kathryn Richards' Art Show.

The evening will also consist of room visitation and a business meeting, which will include election of officers and bylaw revisions; and a brief social.

ACHS Students Walk For Hunger

Over 80 Arlington Catholic High School students participated in the 17th Annual Greater Boston Walk for Hunger held this past Sunday.

The 20-mile walk raises funds to provide food for the hungry in Greater Boston and around the world. Recipient organizations include several groups which Arlington Catholic High School students have supported during the current school year by means of fundraisers and collections including Oxfam-America, St. Francis Shelter, Pine Street Inn, Rosie's Place, Bridge Over Troubled Waters, and the Little Brothers-Friends of the Elderly.

For many students it was their first time participating in the walk. For senior Shelagh Murray it was her seventh year following the route which begins at the State House, winds through Brookline and Newton and continues along the Charles River back to the Boston Common.

They are now in the process of collecting well-earned donations from the many classmates, faculty members, relatives and friends who sponsored them.

Brosnan Named To Honor Society

Thomas Brosnan, a member class of 1987 at Matignon High School, was recently elected president of the Matignon Chapter of the National Honor Society for the 1986-87 year. A resident of 18 Wachusett Ave., Brosnan's post was announced by school principal John Twombly and the faculty.

School Issues Forum Is Tonight At 7:30

Parents for Responsive Education (PRE), a group of Arlington parents and other interested citizens, will host an open forum to discuss issues of quality education in the Arlington Public Schools tonight May 8, at 7:30 p.m. at the First Parish Unitarian Universalist Church at 630 Mass. Ave.

The group was established last fall to research the credentials of School Committee candidates and to actively support those deemed most qualified — a major criterion being having children in Arlington public schools.

The evening will begin with a short introduction about the history of the group. Agenda items will center about specific concerns shared by the group, each of which will be briefly discussed.

Following these comments, the audience will be invited to share their thoughts.

The goal of tonight's meeting will be to target issues for follow-up discussion and research. It is hoped that the results of these follow-up efforts will produce specific items to be pursued in the coming months.

Agenda items to be considered initially are: (1) new entrants — parental information/support; (2) after-school care; (3) transitions from elementary through high school; (4) curriculum; (5) tracking; (6) special needs; (7) the arts; (8) policies/procedures affecting parental involvement; (9) flight to private/parochial schools.

Imagine a sustainable future for our planet

HOW PEACE CAME TO THE WORLD

Edited by Earl W. Foell
and Richard A. Nenneman
Foreword by Kurt Waldheim

It can happen. In the year 2010 the world is at peace and the threat of nuclear devastation has vanished. How has this come about? Through the imaginative ideas of forty men and women—lawyers, doctors, professors, conflict research specialists, and others who think about peace in a different way, who do not accept that war is inevitable.

The wealth of original and workable approaches to peace presented in this book has been selected from entries to "Peace 2010," a contest sponsored by The Christian Science Monitor.

This book is available for sale in your local Christian Science Reading Room.

"The essays collected in this volume are sound ideas of what all nations of the world must do to make our planet safer for ourselves and for future generations." Ronald Reagan

"The book is a superb reminder that people everywhere owe a duty to the children to safeguard the future." International Physicians for the Prevention of Nuclear War, recipients of the 1985 Nobel Peace Prize

Ashrita Furman, 31, of Queens, New York, gets support from friends on his record-setting somersaulting journey along Paul Revere's route.

Furman somersaults his way along Mass. avenue in Arlington last Wednesday morning.

The 31-year-old follower of Sri Chinmoy followed Paul Revere's route in reverse.

'I'm definitely in for the out-of-the-ordinary athletic events. For one thing, I think it gives people a lot of joy.'

—Ashrita Furman

Rolling Along Revere's Route

By CATHERINE WALTHERS

The somersaulter who rolled his way through Arlington to another Guinness world record last Wednesday could almost take the record for holding the most world records.

Ashrita Furman, a 31-year-old Queens, N.Y., health food store owner tumbled 13 miles on Paul Revere's route from Lexington to Boston for a new Guinness Book record in somersaults.

He also holds world records for hand clapping, milk-bottle balancing, pogo stick hopping and stretcher bearing.

The follower of spiritual leader Sri Chinmoy has also been listed in the Guinness Book at one time for juggling and jumping jack records.

Furman completed his latest goal of rolling along Paul Revere's historic route in 10 hours and 10 minutes — just about 7,800 rolls.

From his start in Lexington, Furman entered Arlington just after 9:30 last Wednesday morning and rolled along Mass. ave. to Medford st. en route to Charlestown. Furman took Revere's historic ride in reverse to avoid as many hills as possible.

"Of all the records I've broken, this is undoubtedly the hardest," says Furman who set his previous somersaulting record on a 10-mile trek around New York City's Central Park in 1980. "Forward rolls are the greatest test of strength and willpower because of the nausea and dizziness; that's probably why the record has stood for six years."

Meets Obstacles

Despite the padding on his back, head and hands, Furman met a lot of problems along the route including nausea and difficulty climbing the hills.

The night before Furman stuffed himself with pizza, his usual routine. But this time, he believes the peppers on the pizza caused extreme nausea on the first mile of the trip.

When he overcame the nausea, he faced the hills.

"I've never trained on hilly terrain, and I started getting a lot of soreness which I normally don't experience," he said two days later recovering at his home in New York.

"After about six or seven miles my wrist started really really bothering me, and then my arms. There were times when I thought I wouldn't make it."

Now Furman is thinking about his next goal — breaking his own record for pogo stick jumping in water. A Texas radio station has just invited him to fly down and attempt to break his record of 3 hours, 20 minutes.

"I'm definitely in for the out-of-the-ordinary athletic events," Furman explains.

"For one thing, I think it gives people a lot of joy," he says. "The traditional things don't really excite people's imagination. When you do something like this, people say 'if he can somersault 13 miles, I can certainly run for two to three miles.'"

Started With Juggling

Furman began breaking records to honor Sri Chinmoy, spiritual leader and "health and fitness" guru, who himself had just completed 100,000 paintings over the course of one year.

"I wanted to express my appreciation to Sri Chinmoy. At that time I was into juggling, so I juggled three balls 100,000 times," Furman said. "It took me 11 hours."

"That wasn't hard, so I started looking for records in the Guinness Book." He came across jumping jacks.

"Within two months of training, I did 27,000," Furman recalls. "It makes you think anything is possible."

Someone after Furman did 30,000 jumping jacks. Furman followed with 33,000.

Furman has also clapped for 50 continuous hours, hopped 11.5 miles up and down Japan's Mt. Fuji on a pogo stick, balanced a milk bottle on his head for 24 miles and carried a stretcher bearing 140 pounds for 127 miles.

Furman, who keeps in shape by running two to three miles daily and lifting weights, also practices weeks before each event.

Draws From Inner Strength

In all the events, Furman says he draws in the inner strength he gains from his meditation. The philosophy he follows talks about "transcending yourself... always trying to go beyond," Furman explains.

In his recent somersaulting expedition, Furman said he was concentrating so hard on his form and overcoming his pain, he was hardly aware of the events around him.

"I had to really dig deep to keep going. I thought I was finished," he said. "I really went deep inside and tried to draw on the strength of my meditation."

Furman stresses his commonness and believes in "people's unlimited capacity."

"I'm not really looking to become famous," Furman says. "I'm not anybody special. Anybody can do these things."

Board OKs New Tenant For Ottoson

The Redevelopment Board approved a permit on Monday allowing the Greater Boston Regional Center to lease space at the Ottoson Junior High School next fall.

The center is one of six regional offices of the state's Department of Education.

Renovations will begin over the summer and the center will move into the school in September.

The center will pay $100,000 per year and receive a five-year lease. It will occupy 21,313 square feet of the 160,000-square-foot building.

Between 60 and 70 people will work for the Greater Boston Regional Center in Arlington.

Some neighbors voiced concern about possible parking problems, but were satisfied when they learned of parking plans.

The upper parking area will be modified and 20 additional spaces added. Nearby St. James Church will also allow the center to use 30 additional spaces.

The Ottoson Junior High will be the fourth school in Arlington where excess space is leased to outside organizations.

Joint Occupancy is one way to avoid school closings. Ottoson Junior High School has a capacity of 1,100, but only slightly over 400 students are there now.

Lyons Donates Funds For Senior Class T-Shirts

Thanks to the campaign funds donated by Charles Lyons all seniors of the Class of '86 who attend the first all-night graduation party will receive a free T-shirt. The design of this special graduation T-shirt was created by Arlington High School senior Veronica Jordan.

Over 30 seniors competed with Jordan in a contest to design the T-shirt. The finalists included Dan Foskett, Aimee Bedo, Tom Vanderhoeve, Michael Buckley, Katy Coughlin, and Matt Sheerin.

Tickets for the all-night graduation party will go on sale May 20.

Any parent or community member that would like to donate to the all-night graduation party or chaperone should contact Mary Goodhue, treasurer, or Claire Bryant, chaperones, through Arlington High School.

State House

Abortion (H 5338) - A Constitutional Convention approved 123-69, a proposed constitutional amendment stating "no provision of the Constitution shall prevent the General Court from regulating or prohibiting abortion unless prohibited by the U.S. Constitution, nor shall any provisions of the Constitution require public or private funding of abortion or the provision of services or facilities therefor, beyond that provided by the U.S. Constitution. The provisions of this article shall not apply to abortions required to prevent the death of the mother."

Supporters argued abortion is murder and said the amendment will allow the legislature to eventually enact bills to give the state tough anti-abortion laws.

Opponents defended "pro-choice" and argued abortion is not murder but is a private matter for an individual to decide. They said anti-abortion laws will simply result in illegal and unsafe abortions.

A "Yea" vote is for the amendment. A "Nay" vote is against it.

The proposed amendment now goes on the November 1986 ballot for voter consideration.

Senator Richard Kraus voted no. Representative John Cusack, voted yes and Representative Mary Jane Gibson voted no.

Prescriptions (S 486) - Senate 20-9, rejected an amendment to a bill which allows registered nurses to dispense some drugs in more than a single dose in certain family planning clinics.

The amendment would prohibit the drugs from being dispensed without a written or oral prescription of a physician.

Amendment supporters said the law is vague and claimed the amendment insures that birth control and other pill prescriptions will not be written by nurses.

Opponents said the amendment is unnecessary because the law already clearly requires a physician to write prescriptions.

A "Yea" vote is for the amendment. A "Nay" vote is against it.

Kraus voted no.

Balanced Billing (S 501) - Senate 31-2, rejected an amendment to a bill allowing prescription writing by physician assistants. The amendment would repeal a "balanced billing" law, passed in 1984, which prohibits doctors from charging a patient more than the amount the medical plan reimburses.

Amendment supporters, noting it does not repeal the balance billing on medicaid and medicare patients, said the amendment applies to Blue Cross type plans.

They said the law is unfair to doctors and is driving them out of the state.

Opponents said the law protects patients, saves money and is fair to everyone involved.

A "Yea" vote is for the amendment.

ment. A "Nay" vote is against it. Kraus voted no.

Guns (H 1919) - House 107-36, rejected a bill tightening regulations regarding firearm sales and record keeping.

The bill requires gun license applicants to successfully pass a written and practical exam in the safe handling and use of firearms to be administered by police departments or National Rifle Association clubs.

Supporters said the bill will simply insure that gun owners are educated and knowledgeable about guns.

Opponents said the bill is too restrictive and noted the problem of liability for gun clubs and communities administering the test.

A "Yea" vote is for the bill. A "Nay" vote is against it.

Cusack voted no.

Gibson voted yes.

Gasohol (H 4817) - House 137-6, rejected a bill prohibiting the sale of any motor fuel which contains alcohol.

Supporters said gasohol can be dangerous when used in boats and cars and can cause damage and problems.

Opponents said a ban is not warranted and claimed that there is not necessarily any greater danger in using gasohol as opposed to regular gasoline.

A "Yea" vote is for the bill. A "Nay" vote is against it.

Cusack and Gibson voted no.

Balanced Budget (H 3342) - House 81-58, rejected a bill calling for a federal Constitutional Convention for the exclusive purpose of proposing a constitutional amendment requiring a balanced federal budget except in cases of national emergency.

Supporters said Congress has refused to balance the budget and argued a constitutional requirement is the only way to accomplish it.

Opponents said the requirement does not belong in the Constitution and argued Congress should retain the power to balance or not balance the budget.

A "Yea" vote is for the bill. A "Nay" vote is against it.

Cusack did not vote.

Gibson voted no.

Six Month Session (H 3761) - House 105-32, rejected an order providing that the House call for a state constitutional convention for the purpose of considering a proposed amendment limiting the Massachusetts legislative session to six months.

Supporters, noting the amendment allows special sessions when necessary, said the legislature can easily complete its work in six months and save taxpayers' money.

Opponents said an arbitrary six month limit is too restrictive and would leave a lot of unfinished work.

A "Yea" vote is for the order. A "Nay" vote is against it.

Cusack did not vote.

Gibson voted no.

The Case Of The Absent Adjuster

By RICHARD MANUGIAN

Got a problem? Insurance company giving you the runaround?

Call your friendly state insurance officials.

I did.

I had three problems, including one that went as far back as March of 1983, when I lived in Texas.

No matter what I tried, I couldn't get anywhere with any of them.

But state insurance officials solved each of them, one by one.

Take The Case of the Absent Adjuster.

It all began just before I moved here from Rhode Island last August, and my car was hit by an uninsured driver.

I was covered by against uninsured motorists by one of our country's biggest insurance companies, though, so I wasn't worried.

Three months later, after the company had yet to send an adjuster to look at my twisted and rusting car, I began to worry.

Phone calls to the company's regional claims office got me nowhere fast, and weeks passed without them even returning my phone calls.

Helpless and hapless, I contacted the Massachusetts Division of Insurance.

They took my predicament a little more seriously than the people at the insurance company.

They took it so seriously, in fact, that within a week I received a very courteous phone call from a strange new official at the insurance company.

He said he wanted to settle my claim immediately and set me up with an adjuster.

He also said he was sorry my case had dragged on for so long.

They're always sorry that your case has dragged on for so long.

But they're particularly sorry, I think, when your case has dragged on for so long that their state's insurance commission raises an eyebrow in their direction.

They were doubly sorry, for instance, in The Case of the Recalcitrant Refunder.

It all started when I moved from Texas to Rhode Island last spring, and cancelled the remainder of my auto insurance policy with a local agent in San Antonio.

The policy ran through September, and it was an expensive policy, so I had a pretty good refund coming.

And, as I watched the seasons change, I called my friendly agent every few weeks to ask why I hadn't received my money.

Each time, polite caseworkers told me they couldn't understand the delay, but would straighten it out and call me back "by the end of next week."

Not one of the polite caseworkers ever got back to me, though.

So, by the time leaves started falling from the trees, I contacted the State Board of Insurance in Texas.

Two weeks later, I got a letter from my San Antonio insurance agent explaining that my refund was on its way, being routed through the insurance board.

In the same letter, the agent said he was sorry that the matter had inconvenienced me and that I had felt it necessary to contact his state's insurance officials.

I knew he would be.

And I knew he had to be even sorer a week later, when I received a letter from the State Board of Insurance.

The people at the Board said that the agent had sent them a check for less than he actually owed me, and that they rejected it and told him to pay up in full.

A few days later, I received — direct from the agent — a check for the correct amount.

Even though he didn't say it this time, I assumed he was sorry.

No one was as sorry as I was, though, over The Case of the Purlin-End Premiums.

If you liked the first two, you'll love this one.

I saved it for last, because it's the best case of all.

It involved the most money, was the hardest to resolve and took the longest to settle — nearly three years.

And, in next week's column, I'll tell you all about it.

Letters To The Editor

On Town Versus City Government

TO THE EDITOR:

There has been discussion lately in the Arlington Advocate and in Boston papers on the pro and con of town versus city forms of municipal government. Let me enumerate some pro-city arguments.

It is more efficient. Fewer people are involved. No unwieldy, moody, sometimes uninformed Town Meeting assemblies only once or a few times during a year and may undo carefully prepared projects. It can get emotional and shoot from the hip.

On the other hand, the Town Meeting form of government has been democracy in action at the grass roots. Many of us love Arlington as it is and would hate to see it take on the traits of the neighboring Cambridge.

Moreover, the town-manager form of town government has streamlined our Arlington administration and has concentrated much power in the manager, especially if he is as good as Don Marquis and has been around as long as he has been.

Thus, there is the potential danger that the manager acquires too much power. And the Town Meeting members, who have their full-time jobs, are in need of citizen watchdogs like the Finance Committee to do their home work.

I remember an instance when the issue was a warrant article to add an article to the Town Bylaws some years back to form a Department of Finance and Administration, under the Town Manager, that would include the treasurer, clerk, and comptroller.

John Balafer fought desperately to retain his freedom as an elected official, instead of becoming a manager appointed department functionary.

The Finance Committee chairman at the time was George Rugg, a republican by persuasion and employed at the time very conservative Boston Herald.

He opposed the article, which the manager had inserted in the warrant, and exclaimed: "Rather a hundred mice than one lion!" — and won.

For sure, Democracy is not the most efficient political system for a town or for a nation, but it is ours since the war of independence.

For sure, Democracy is not the most efficient political system for a town or for a nation, but it is ours since the war of independence.

We still cherish it. Let's keep it and keep Arlington the town we love.

Rolling Through Arlington

TO THE EDITOR:

Yes, I admit it, I'm the one who had heads turning and traffic slowing as I somersaulted through Arlington, along Paul Revere's Ride and into the Guinness Book of Records.

I have many people to thank for helping me establish the new record and top of the list are the people of Arlington who were the most vocal and supportive with their spontaneous encouragement along the route.

It was not the easiest way to travel through your town, and it was even harder to thank people from a somersaulting viewpoint.

So please pass on my sincere gratitude to all those who offered their encouragement; to the police department for their invaluable assistance; and to everyone who shared this painful and joyful experience.

I look forward to visiting Arlington again soon — standing solidly on two feet next time!

Many Thanks

Concord.

Another beautiful and stunning sight is our Avenue of Flags. This year only a few flags were displayed in the vicinity of the Town Hall.

I learned the reason for the absence of these flags was that no one was available to put them up.

They are supposed to be displayed on seven legal holidays, Patriots Day being one of those days.

I'm sure many residents of Arlington were as disappointed as I was.

Hopefully, we will view the Avenue of Flags on Memorial Day extending from East Arlington to the Heights.

Students Run The Show

TO THE EDITOR:

Last Thursday, May 1, the Arlington Lodge of Elks held its annual Student Government Day and again it was a great success.

Over 120 juniors and seniors participated in running our town government for one day. During their Town Meeting, they discussed five articles.

Moderators, Marianne DiMascio, a senior, and David O'Neill, a junior, did a fine job in running the meeting.

This year's Youth Activities Chairman, Steve Kelly, along with Hank Phillips, did a great job to make this day a success.

A special thanks to Arlington Emblem Club members, president, Peg Holt, Mary Doty, Kay Gardner, Marie Capabianco, Rita Berry, Peg Briand, and Ceila Barrett for their help in serving the luncheon.

Candidates Spend Thousands

School Committee winner Carey spent an average of only nine cents for each of his votes, while Fennelly spent 70 cents. Healy paid 31 cents per vote.

In the Selectman's race, more money was spent on newspaper advertising than in any other one area.

All three Selectman candidates spent nearly the same amount of money on newspaper ads in the campaign, with Conroy's bill amounting to $1,699. McGinnity spent $1661 and Speros spent $1441.

In the School Committee race, more money was devoted to printing than to advertising or postal expenses.

Healy spent the most money on printing for a total of $963. Kelly spent $901 on printing, and Fennelly spent $801. Carey had no listed printing expenses.

Postal items ate up $575 of Fennelly's expenses, $198 of Carey's, $586 for Kelly, and $409 for Healy.

Kelly spent $757 on advertising, more than any other School Committee candidate. Advertising consumed $606 of Healy's money, $458 for Fennelly, and $188 for Carey.

In the selectman's race, Conroy's second largest expense was postal items with a bill of $1,491. He also spent $1,067 on food and beverages.

McGinnity hired and paid a campaign consultant and manager. McGinnity's payment of $1,500 to Larry Barton of Barton and Associates was his second largest expense.

McGinnity and Speros reported receiving no campaign contributions of under $15, while Conroy received a total of $104.

In general, McGinnity received fewer but larger campaign contributions, while Conroy gathered smaller checks from more contributors.

Conroy received a total of 206 different contributions over $15, while McGinnity received 129. Speros got five. However, McGinnity received 24 checks for over $100 while Conroy received 16, and Speros four.

The largest contribution in the selectman's race was a $1,000 check to McGinnity from Alice McGinnity. Speros' biggest contribution came from Edward Narasargian of Weston. It was a check for $500.

Conroy's two largest contributions came from Iris Nigro and William Armstrong of Jupiter, Fla., who both gave him $300.

For the selectmen, Conroy completed his campaign with a remaining balance of $958, while McGinnity had a final balance of $519. Speros found himself at the end of his campaign $3,696 in the red.
